Dan Gurney, a moment of glory. But for Dan those moments were many. His name still can be read on the wheels by "Dan Gurney Industries," called "Victory Mags."

Jim Davis (r.) was editor/publisher and picture shooter for "Super Stock" mag. Jerry Gross was a traveling mechanic with Dick Landy. Jim's gen. mgr. of B&M and Jerry's gen. mgr. of Sportscoach.

Chuck Krauss and his father Les stand before their garage, from which they ran their company. Decorative tape was a new concept when the company started 14 years ago. Today, Trimbrite has 450 products.

Lou Senter, in those days with Ansen, stands in front of his "company car," a racer of course. Lou's now with Mr. Gasket's "Van Stuff."
