who need nothing more than a sincere and heartfelt thank you. Those less fortunate return to us battle scarred, physically and emotionally, and in need of continued support during their recovery process. Divergent opinions pertaining to the US war on terror are a given, but there should be no conflict involving the support of US troops, whether they are in-country or overseas. The servicemen and women of the US have sacrificed much in an effort to maintain and defend this nation; they are truly heroes and heroines.

For Peter "PJ" Johns (Navy Chief) of Texas and Jamin Moore (Army, 101st) of California, a bit of fly fishing and R&R in Montana were a welcome diversion from a seemingly endless succession of medical procedures.

Please keep our troops in your thoughts and prayers for their safe return.
